Consultation Questions

We would welcome your general views, specifically in response to the following questions:

1. Do you think that ARB's current approach to investigating allegations against architects is effective and proportionate?

2. Is the published guidance clear and accessible for those involved in the investigations process?

3. Do you have any suggestions as to how ARB's current processes might be more fair, effective, economic or comprehensive?

4. Please give any further comments you would like to make here
